

| Paper: 1MA1/2F |        |      |                                                                                                                                                                                                       |                                                                   |
|----------------|--------|------|-------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|-------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Question       | Answer | Mark | Mark scheme                                                                                                                                                                                           | Additional guidance                                               |
| 20             | 1.75   | P1   | for an initial processeg $1.80 \div 12 (=0.15)$ or $1.80 \div 3 (=0.6)$                                                                                                                           | Accept $1.8 \div 12 = 15$ (p)They can work in pounds or pence |
|                |        | P1   | for a correct second step eg “0.15” $\div 3 (=0.05)$ or “0.6” $\times 7 (=4.2)$or $3 \div \text{“0.15”} (=20)$ or $7 \div 3 (=2.3\ldots)$ or “0.15” $\times 7 (=1.05)$                            |                                                                   |
|                |        | P1   | for finding the price of one pen eg-“0.05” $\times 7 (=0.35)$or “4.2” $\div 12 (=0.35)$ or $7 \div \text{“20”} (=0.35)$ or “2.3....” $\times \text{“0.15”} (=0.35)$ or“1.05” $\div 3 (=0.35)$ |                                                                   |
|                |        | A1   | cao                                                                                                                                                                                                   |                                                                   |