

| Paper 1MA1: 3H |         |                   |                |                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                             |
|----------------|---------|-------------------|----------------|---------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------------|
| Question       | Working | Answer            | Mark           | Notes                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                                       |
| 17 (a)         |         | No(supported) | P1P1P1 | for 265 or 275 or 274.999... or 107.5 or 112.5 or 112.4999...process to find $\frac{d}{t}$ where $270 < d \leq 275$ and $107.5 \leq t < 110$ oefor process to work in consistent units of timeeg $\frac{d}{t} \times 60$ or $t \div 60$ where $265 \leq d \leq 275$ and $107.5 \leq t < 110$ oeor $160 \div 60 (= 2.666..)$ |
| (b)            |         | Statement         | C1             | Conclusion supported with correct figure(s) given eg No and 153(.488..) orNo and 2.66 to 2.7 and 2.5(581..) from correct workinge.g. Less distance in the same time so (max) speed would drop                                                                                                                                   |